The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

ONE OF THE most interesting pieces of news to come out of Germany since the war began—and it's one of the most important, if true—is the report that the whole Nazi government has abandoned Berlin.

While this is unconfirmed, it does come on the heels of the evacuation of a million residents of the threatened capital. Maybe Hitler's inflexible institution has enabled him to read the Allied program which has been set forth at Quebec by British minister of Information Brendan Bracken thus pointedly:

"These plans are to bomb and burn ruthlessly destroy, in every way available to us, the people responsible for creating this war."

One could wish, by the way, that the Fuehrer might have heard Bracken deliver that edict. I wasn't present, but I know the minister as one of England's most colorful personalities. He's a big chap who pours out conviction in a torrent of forceful words, while his victim is held fascinated by the brilliant red hair which flares up from Bracken's head like the flames from a blast furnace. Yes, it's a pity Hitler wasn't there.

For any normal government—which of course the Nazi regime is not—a desertion of the national capital is like abandonment of ship at sea. It's an act that denotes desperation.

Thus the head of a government and his chief ministers cling to their capital as a sea captain sticks to his bridge. They're among the last to leave. When they do go, it means they have small hope that the first city of the nation will survive.

During the height of the terrible aerial blitz which London endured in 1940-41, when the British ship of state was wallowing in mountainous seas, the square-jawed Churchill and his cabinet stuck to the bridge. True, some archives and subordinate offices were moved out of London, but for the prime minister and his government to flee the capital would have been regarded as an admission of defeat, both at home and abroad.

BACK IN 1941 when Hitler's victorious armies were surging towards Moscow, the Soviet authorities moved the diplomatic corps to Kuibyshev. But Stalin and the other members of the Red government coolly carried on at the old stand, as an inspiration and a guarantee of security to the people of all the Russian.

Now nobody suggests for a moment that Hitler and his government have moved, or do move, it's because of cowardice. The Germans are brave enough.

Abandonment of the German capital would mean (1) that Berlin is in peril of destruction, and (2) that the Prussian militarists are exhibiting one of their outstanding characteristics—a disinclination to risk their necks unless it's absolutely necessary.

FEAR 11 DEAD IN EXPLOSION

Three Known Dead in Linoleum Plant Blast At Kearny, N. J.

KEARNY, N. J., Aug. 20.—A mass of rubble hid the fate today of at least eight persons believed buried in the ruins of a three-story brick and concrete building at the Conkoleum-Nalra, Inc. plant after an explosion and fire which left three dead and 10 others injured, eight critically.

Fire Chief Charles Burnett of Newark said steamshovels would be used in the search of the blackened, smoking heaps of debris. "The blast last yesterday rocked a 10-mile area in the heart of war-busy northern New Jersey and broke windows in homes and stores within a mile radius of the sprawling linoleum products plant on the banks of the Passaic river.

Fire which sprouted out from the blasted No. 12 building wrecked two other structures before the flames were brought under control last night.

"The building just blew skyward in a cloud of wreckage and then fell back to the earth in pieces," was one worker's description of the blast.

A spokesman for the company said a check of workers' homes showed eight persons missing but other sources indicated the toll might rise much higher.

Firemen and rescue workers expressed the belief that some workers from other buildings, such as messengers or freight truckers, might have been in the building.

Fire Chief Burnett said the explosion was caused by dust from cork and linoleum. He described the force of the blast as "more terrific than dynamite."

Restore Five Mines To Private Control

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The government today restored five coal mines to private ownership with the explanation that "government possession of these mines is not necessary to insure uninterrupted wartime coal production."

None of the five mines had a contract with the United Mine Workers. Consequently the action by Secretary of the Interior Ickes did not challenge the UMW policy, stated June 23, that John L. Lewis' miners would work only as long as government operation continued.

The action was the first step toward returning the mines to their owners since passage of the Smith-Connally Anti-Strike act.

None of the five mines had experienced strikes. They were: Barnes Coal & Mining Co., Co-shocot, O.; Elk River Coal & Lumber Co., Columbus, O.; Rail & Lake Coal Co., Cleveland; Sheban Mining Co., North Lima, O.; and the Shuff Coal Co., Oconota, Ala.

Ickes said applications for terminating government possession and control of additional mines were under consideration.

Officials Tee Off In Prize Golf Exhibit

Courthouse Employees, At Outing Show How Game Shouldn't Be Played

LISBON, Aug. 20.—Golf, as it shouldn't be played, was on exhibition at the East Liverpool County club Thursday afternoon when courthouse officials and employees enjoyed an outing.

While the top-flight golfers exhibited remarkable control and kept their scores down in spite of the remarks and antics of others of the group, the novices explored the countryside and after "appropriate remarks" and "countless" strokes would always rejoin their foursome at each flag. Then with new determination all would "tee" off and to the amateurs the hunt would be on again with the others joining in playing "I spy" in the rough.

Atty. Milton C. Cope took top honors with an 88 for the 18 holes, shading Deputy Treasurer Vincent Judge by one stroke on the last hole to gain the victory, 44-44, 44-45.

Sexton took third honors with 103, shooting a 51 and a 57; Judge Joel H. Sharp scored a 62 and 58, and Auditor I. J. Vorndran a 64 and 56.

Prosecutor Frank Springer topped Atty. John E. Bauknecht with a 62 and 59 against the latter's 65 and 57.

The prize grudge match between Howard Sinclair and C. L. "Dutch" Wetzel, neither of whom had ever swung a club before, resulted in scoring a 79-79 over Sinclair's 87-84.

Ronald Charlton who had been paired with Sexton, failed to appear and Norman Ward, News correspondent who accompanied the golfers to cover the match, agreed to pinch hit, running a handsome score of 70 and 75.

Assistant Prosecutor James Elliott, a bit off the beam with all the levity, turned in 71 and 73, and Frank Aiken shot an 83 and an 80, completing the three foursomes.

Climaxing the outing all enjoyed a steak dinner at the Travelers hotel in East Liverpool at the expense of the losers.

Orville Wright, 75, Plans New Plane Development

DAYTON, Aug. 20.—Orville Wright, who with his brother invented the airplane, disclosed Thursday his 72nd birthday—that he was working on "an invention having to do with aviation."

He told reporters he had nothing more to say about the project. He works daily in his laboratory here.

Orville and Wilbur Wright were the first to fly in heavier-than-air craft, sailing aloft from Kitty Hawk, N. C., Dec. 17, 1903. Wilbur died in 1912.

Only observance of Orville's birthday was a family dinner last night.

ISLANDS NEAR MESSINA NOW IN U. S. HANDS

Lipari and Stromboli In Tyrrhenian Sea Surrender to Naval Force

(By Associated Press) ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 20.—Lipari and Stromboli islands, in the Tyrrhenian sea northwest of Messina, have surrendered to a United States naval expedition, it was announced today.

The occupation of Lipari and Stromboli, the main islands of the Aeolian group, places the whole group at the disposal of the Allies, a naval communiqué said.

Stromboli lies off Italy's gulf of Eufemia about 50 miles above Messina. Lipari is 35 miles northwest of the captured straits port.

Both North African air forces and heavy U. S. Liberators from the Middle East attacked the Italian city of Foggia yesterday by daylight and darkness, causing heavy damage despite strong fighter opposition.

Thirty-four enemy fighters were shot down, a communiqué said, in this action, one of the greatest raids of the Mediterranean war. Five more Axis planes were destroyed over southern Italy, and another was bagged Wednesday night.

Seventeen Allied planes were lost during all operations.

The Allied mass bombing tactics that had knocked out every important target in Sicily were applied to Foggia—20 miles inland from the Adriatic sea—by fortresses and Liberators during the day and Wellingtons after dark.

A large industrial city and railway junction, lies 160 miles southeast of Rome.

British cruisers and destroyers steaming up the west coast of the Calabrian peninsula Tuesday night bombed Scalo, some 26 miles south of Cape Pallino where the railway runs close to the sea.

"Naval activity continues on both coasts of the Calabrian peninsula and on the eastern shore of the straits of Messina," the naval communiqué added.

Great concentrations of anti-aircraft fire encountered by attacking Allied bombers and continued shelling from artillery posts indicated the Axis still was strongly entrenched around Reggio Calabria in southern Italy.

There was every indication the enemy would fight to the last ditch to hold the extreme tip of the Italian peninsula against the Allied armies massed along the Sicilian coast across Messina strait.

Shells rained steadily across the strait as Axis 15-inch coastal rifles, hurling 2,400-pound objectives, dueling with American and British field batteries.

LAST BLOOD DONOR APPEAL IS MADE

Registration Will Close Saturday for 400 Persons Who Are Needed

Red Cross donor officials were filling out and mailing appointment cards today in preparation for the visit of the mobile unit from Cleveland Monday and Tuesday.

Registration of prospective donors is lagging, workers say, with only tonight and Saturday left to sign. They voiced the hope that persons intending to give blood next week, but have not yet called for appointment, would call at once to facilitate arrangements for the donation.

Four hundred volunteers are needed to bring the unit to Salem. Actual donation requires less than an hour, officials point out, urging a prompt response to the call for donors before Monday. Donor headquarters telephone number is 4500.

RAF, U.S. Bombers Continue Raids On Occupied Europe

(By Associated Press) LONDON, Aug. 20.—Fast British Mosquito bombers again attacked targets in Berlin last night while fighters struck at airfields and railway targets on the continent, it was announced today.

The night raids followed blows by Allied planes, including American Flying Fortresses, at four of Germany's most important air bases in Holland and France yesterday.

A joint British-American communiqué disclosed 50 enemy aircraft were shot down yesterday.

Intruders last night attacked railway and airfield targets in France and Belgium.

Vilzingen (Flushing) and Gilze-Rijen in Holland were battered by American Flying Fortresses late yesterday afternoon and 34 enemy fighters were shot down by the big bombers and their escorts of U. S. and Allied Thunderbolts and Spitfires, the communiqué said.

The Fortresses accounted for 16 enemy fighters and their escorts knocked down 18, the bulletin declared. Good bombing results were reported on both targets.

Four bombers and two fighters were lost in these raids, but the pilot of one was saved.

U. S. Marauders and RAF Mitchells earlier in the day had blasted Nazi airfields at Poix and Amiens-Gilly in France. The Americans spearheaded the thrusts, with the British planes following with a second pounding of the airfields last night.

"Typhoons and spitfires of the RAF joined in later and together they knocked down 15 German fighters while the Marauders got one. Six Allied fighters were reported lost.

The wide scope of the raids kept American, British, Dominion and

PROGRAM ENJOYED BY PERRY GRANGE

Two candidates were initiated at the meeting of Perry Grange Wednesday evening at the hall. A service flag was presented to the grange by the home economics committee in honor of the members who are in the armed services.

The program was in charge of members of the Stutch and Chatter 4-H club, with Mrs. Perry Hilliard as advisor, and included a song, "H Club Trail" by members; roll call, answered with each member displaying a garment she made; song, "There's a Star Spangled Banner Waving Somewhere," Shirley Hilliard; piano duet, Arlene and Lorna Clark; skit, "Two Pints of Cream and a Quart of Milk Please"; Pae Hilliard and Margaret Sommers; violin solo, Donald Newhouse, accompanied by Mrs. Oliver Duke; reading, "Dollar Day," Mary Lou Mason; reading, Janet Youtz; skit, "The Cow and the Bicycle," Margory Clark and Marilyn Noll; poem, "Our War," written by Miss Henrietta Hilliard and read by Miss Ellen Clark; poem, "What the 4-H Flag Means," Eleanor Sobotka.

In the northeastern New Guinea fighting zone, the communiqué reported consolidation of American and Australian positions on ridges five miles southwest of Salamaua. That is within three miles of the Salamaua, an isthmus town which the Japanese have held since early in 1942, is in ruins, pounded by more than 1,000 tons of bombs within a month. Its garrison is supplied largely by barge, and today's communiqué, as have so many others, told of barges being blasted to bits by Allied bombers in New Guinea and New Britain waters.

Depleted in air support by the wiping out of 215 planes at We-wak and haphazardly supplied and reinforced, the Japanese before Salamaua are fighting from ridge to ridge and yielding slowly.

A candlelight service was held by club members and lunch was served by the social committee.

The annual grange inspection by the county deputy master will be held Sept. 15.

New Offensive Aimed at Nazi, Jap War Lords

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

QUEBEC, Aug. 20.—The Quebec war conference, driving forward to advance the zero hour for invasion of the European continent, produced today a strong, official indication that tremendous new operations against Japan also were in the making.

Brendan Bracken, British minister of information, was the first high participant in the war councils to give any inkling of what was going on behind the guarded portals of Quebec's Citadel, where President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill are mapping strategy which may settle the fate of the world.

"These plans," Bracken told a press conference last night, "are to bomb and burn and ruthlessly destroy, in every way available to us, the people responsible for creating this war."

His words were sufficiently inclusive to embrace not only the foe in Europe but also Japan, and he underscored them by declaring that "it's all one war."

"I think the war is going very well indeed," the British cabinet member asserted, "but it will last a long time and be a very hard war."

"When we have rounded up Mr. Hitler, the whole might of the British empire will be given over to the task of dealing with the Japanese, who are a ruthless, savage people."

"We will not lay down our arms until we have completely conquered Japan. The war won't be over until Japan has reaped the price of her treachery."

"Every ounce of strength we've got we intend to use against Japan."

REDS ADVANCE IN TWIN DRIVES

GOING IS SLOW, HOWEVER, AS TROOPS OVERCOME FORESTS AND SWAMPS

(By Associated Press) MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—Difficult going in terrain naturally lending itself to defense was reported slowing down the Red army today as it pressed twin drives on the Nazi bastions of Bryansk and Kharkov.

Front line dispatches to the Soviet army organ Red Star reported Russian troops on the central front were encountering "considerable difficulties and enormous strain" as they battled their way through forests and swamps and across numerous small rivers toward Bryansk.

(The German communiqué, broadcast from Berlin and recorded by The Associated Press, said violent fighting flared along the Mius river front west of Rostov.

Fighting raged without letup in the Belgorod front, the German bulletin asserted, adding that Red army attempts to effect breakthroughs at other sectors were frustrated. The communiqué said 488 Russian tanks and 81 planes were destroyed yesterday.)

On the Kharkov front in the Ukraine, some 240 miles south of Bryansk, Russian troops were said to be encountering stiff resistance in attempts to overcome German defenses based on hills forming a natural line around the city.

Action in this sector was sharpening in the face of mounting German counterattacks, while the Red army air force pounded heavily at bases in the enemy rear in an endeavor to cripple supply routes.

A fierce battle was reported in one area of the front east of Bryansk. Fresh German battalions repeatedly were hurled into the fray but were unable to hold off the charging Red army, which methodically cleared one village after the other and threw the Nazis back to a new line, the Russians said.

The German air force was reported striking repeatedly but unsuccessfully at the Soviet communication lines.

Russian Stormoviks retaliated with a continuous bombardment of the German positions at Bryansk and farther west.

GREAT LAKES BOAT TOWED INTO PORT

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—The passenger steamer Eastern States, bound from Detroit to Buffalo with approximately 500 passengers and crew, today was disabled by engine trouble about 45 miles northeast of Cleveland harbor.

The Great Lakes Towing Co. said the tug California and Louisiana had been sent to the aid of the lake steamer, operated by the Detroit & Cleveland Navigation Co. The vessel will be towed into Cleveland, arriving late today.

James McMillan, D. & C. general manager, said at Detroit a broken crank pin bolt caused the engine trouble.

"There is no cause for anxiety," he added. "It's just like changing a tire on your automobile."

Bomber Purchase Set

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—An 11-day War bond campaign among employees of Jack & Heintz, Inc., aircraft parts makers, netted $532,868 for a bomber to be named "Spirit of Jahco." Company officials said the bonds were paid for in cash and were in excess of workers' regular 15 per cent payroll deductions.

JUVENILE WAR WORKERS

Industry in every part of the nation and especially in Ohio where the labor shortage is acute, faces a shock and headache with the opening of school when thousands of high school pupils will be going back to school.

Teen age workers flocked to the war plants when schools closed in June and they will be flocking out of them next month to go back to their classrooms. Some will stay on the machines but surveys show that the majority are planning to return to school.

Most industrial plants have shown a fine spirit of cooperation with boys and girls who want to continue their education. No one knows better than business and industrial executives the value of an education and they are refraining almost to a man from putting obstacles in the way of youth who are willing to give up big war wages to finish their schooling.

In fact they are cooperating by adjusting their schedules so that their juvenile workers may spend at their machines whatever part time hours they can take from their school work.

One plant with 50 high school boys earning more than $160 a month reports that all but one are giving up their jobs to go back to school. That shows youth's eagerness for knowledge for $160 a month is more than date money to any teen age lad.

It will take a lot of wisdom and understanding as well as an abundance of patience and hard work for industrial leaders and school heads to come to the decisions which will determine how far youth can go in helping the war effort without handicapping their future. It also means some serious thinking on the part of parents who have the welfare of their children at heart.

TO CURB RECKLESS MINORITY

President Roosevelt's order authorizing new and vigorous action against workers and employers who hamper the war effort by work stoppage is directed against a small and reckless minority on both sides. In speaking of labor troubles which hamper the war effort we are likely to lose sight of the fact that the overwhelming majority of workers are observing faithfully the no-work-stoppage commitments of their leaders.

The President puts new teeth in the powers of the WLB by authorizing the drafting of employees who stop work, by permitting the government to withhold the dues checked off for the unions and by establishing means for withholding war contracts and materials from employers who refuse to comply with official rulings.

The work or fight rule has been talked about ever since Pearl Harbor. It is intended only as a last resort for if a man has been deferred on occupational grounds it is prima facie evidence that he is more important to the nation in overalls than in uniform. If he won't work he can and should be given a gun. There are no walkouts in the army.

Most of the nation's strikes have been unauthorized by the unions leaders and many of them have been over shockingly trivial grievances. Wherever workers or employers refuse to take their share in the war seriously enough to keep production moving to the limit of their ability, government authority should act and anything which cracks down on the reckless minority on either side wins cheers from the American public which wants to see the war over quickly. The public knows, even if some irresponsible hotheads do not, that every time war production is held up the war is extended and more lives are lost.

IN FOR THE FINISH

As the WAAC becomes the WAC and a regular part of the army instead of an auxiliary, members are given the privilege of reenlisting in the army or of going home, but the generals are not much worried. The loyalty and the spirit for victory shown by the women soldiers has been an inspiration to officers and men in all the fighting forces. No branch of the service has shown more devotion or a better spirit.

These young women, all volunteers, put on the uniform because they wanted to have a share in the big job and they won't put it off until victory.

The ones who quit will scarcely be enough to make up a bridge foursome.

STATING IT MILDLY

An amazing modesty, strikingly alien to the skillful extravagance which great men often put into their utterances, is found in some of the day's public expressions. Here are examples:

"Our armies have successfully disengaged themselves from the fighting in Sicily"—Paul Goebbles, Nazi propaganda head.

"Allied bombing of U-boat manufacturing centers has not been conducive to production"—Navy Secretary Frank Knox.

"I surrounded them"—A British major telling how he captured 400 Italians single handed.

THE STARS SAY :

For Saturday, August 21

WHILE THERE are conflicting configurations in this day's lunar aspect yet there are excellent opportunities for success, happiness and many private satisfactions. The chief joys may be found in heart interests, social or artistic achievements or recognition, or other creative expression attracting attention of sudden and surprising force. However, there is a propensity to undue extravagance, excess, or turbulent demonstrations of temper which might negate the fullest measure of gratification and enjoyment.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is have excellent promise for success and happiness, with a surprising opportunity for a lucrative and uncommon expression of creative art or scientific invention. However, there are hints of some public or group lack of endorsement or cooperation, which a display of temper would but aggravate. Refrain from all sorts of excess and extravagance in word and deed. Romantic, social, domestic and affectional associations should culminate happily. Artistic or literary efforts are encouraged.

A child born on this day may have artistic or literary talents of real worth, being original and uncommon. It may also be musical. An inclination to impetuosity, extravagance and excesses should be given early discipline.

CANCER FIGHT FURTHERED

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Discovery of three chemicals which damage malignant cancer without doing equal harm to healthy tissues was announced today in the annual report of Memorial hospital, one of the world's leading cancer institutes.

The difference is slight, not enough to make any of the three useful for human beings. Nevertheless the discovery is of tremendous importance for it is a definite proof of the possibility that a drug can damage cancer more than other tissues.

It is possible, the report says, to synthesize all sorts of new chemicals similar to one of the three. This one is not identified, beyond the fact that it is not 'too toxic, that is not poisonous, to human beings.

Some of the new chemicals which can be made, the report goes on, ought to have a more powerful action, ought to damage cancer cells still more, and healthy issues still less.

"In this way," explains the report, "we could hope to develop in time agents which would have a regular curative effect."

"The goal, a chemical cure and prevention of cancer, is perhaps the greatest to which any organized effort of medical investigation has aspired to attain."

Another thing we note is that the War Manpower Commission is as changeable as is the wind and the weather. You can't tell how different will be tomorrow what it has decreed today.

Fire in the furnace in August may be a little off schedule, but nevertheless it made the home more comfortable—and, incidentally, helps out the coal man.

Penalties of Overeating

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

organic types. I have known several people with "good hearts" who have made a mess of their own and their family's lives.

So with intestinal fortitude. Lots of people have intestines which run away but come back to fight another day. I am speaking of the people who euphemistically and in the most polite circles are referred to as having irritable colons.

Now this simply means that their colons are not made of iron, but of flesh and blood. It means that their colons shy off a little when put through the routine of showing the visiting fireman the town Saturday night. The visiting fireman has no irritable colon—where his large intestine ought to be is something in between a Flying Fortress and Leningrad.

Glutton for Punishment

Saturday night they start at Good Charley's, eat a shovelful of those sandwiches made of hard-boiled eggs, and the other kind made of tough, colled-up fish, then go on to a good rousing dinner at the Kansas City Steak Joint and after visiting a few hot spots wind up at the Dirty Spoon for a few waffles, doughnuts, wheat cakes and coffee.

Instead of jeering at the fellow with an irritable colon after a night like this, you ought to compliment his colon on showing great common sense in getting rid of the dregs of the evening's debauch.

The treatment of the irritable-colon patient, then, is fairly simple. First is psychological. He must get it through his dome he is not a visiting fireman type. It sometimes takes a long time to do this. The other part of the treatment is dietary. Eat the things that are simple to digest and do not subject your digestive system to a test of strength with Nature's most durable foods.

Diet for Irritable Colon

A sample "smooth" diet for these people is:

Beverages: Coffee; cream, malted milk.
Bread and Cereals: White bread; crackers; white rice; spaghetti; noodles; macaroni; cream of wheat; (exclude whole wheat products, bran or other forms of cellulose).

Vegetables: Mashed potatoes; puree of peas; beans; asparagus; beets; carrots.
Fruits: Ripe bananas; strained orange juice; strained tomato juice.

Desserts: Custard; gelatin, rice pudding; cornstarch pudding; sponge cake; angel food cake; blancmange.

Sources of Protein: Cottage cheese; American cheese; cream cheese; eggs; chicken (white meat); fish; scraped beef; cream soups.
Other Foods: Salt; butter; olive oil.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Ohio Pilot Downs Jap Zero Without Firing Single Shot

(By Associated Press)

SOMEWHERE IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, July 17 — (Delayed) — First Lieut. Sheldon Hall, U. S. Navy, a marine corps fighter pilot, was credited today with downing a Japanese bomber and causing a Zero to crash without firing a single shot at it.

The two Jap planes brought Lieut. Hall's total to four, one short of an ace.

The air battle took place over Kookaburra island in the Solomons, when Lieut. Hall's squadron, stumbled over a formation of twin-engine Jap bombers with an escort of Zeros.

"It was every man for himself," said Lieut. Hall, "and I picked out the center bomber in the formation."

"I dived on him and let my guns go, but everything happened so fast up there I don't know whether I got him or not."

"Right below me I saw another bomber. I decided to make sure of this one. Easing down in behind him, I held my guns on him as long as possible. He exploded like a firecracker."

"It was then I realized that there was a Zero after my blood. He was right on my tail. I plunged into a cloud bank in an attempt to shake him, but he stuck like flypaper."

"All this was about 4,000 feet up, and I thought I'd try out-diving my pursuer. I shoved the stick forward and the plane lunged downward. The Zero stayed right with me.—That is until just a few feet above the water."

"When the waves were almost lapping at my plane's belly, I pulled ed out of the dive in a sharp right turn. The Zero tried to follow me and that's where he made his mistake. One of his wings snapped off and he hit the water like a ton of bricks."

When Lieut. Hall's squadron had returned to its base, it was found that out of the scramble it had netted 11 bombers and five Zeros, against the loss of only one plane.

SYNOPSIS
The South American jungle was awakening when the injured red-haired man regained consciousness. With great effort, he followed the tracks leading back into the clearing where his enemies were encamped—with Spud, his wounded pal, their prisoner. Cautiously he waited until three of the men rode off—then quickly attacked and subdued the remaining two. Assuring the semi-conscious Spud that their map was safe, they started up the jungle trail.

CHAPTER TWO
The sun rose higher. The jungle began steaming. As they passed the water hole, Drew stopped and filled his thermos bottle, while above him in the cecilia tree the king vulture peered down. Slowly the morning passed. Leaving the trail, Drew added up a shallow jungle stream. Mosquitoes in great swarms settled about him, but he kept doggedly on.

"They won't find our tracks too easily," he muttered.

Spud did not answer. Heat waves played along the trail, but steadily that bent form kept climbing, always upward toward the shoulder of the foothills; while above him the vulture kept pace, balancing with outspread wings, black and pitiless and watchful against a pitiless blue sky. Once the man looked up and shook his fist. "Come and get it, you scrawny-necked vermin." He cursed the thing in cold anger. But in his heart he wondered.

Higher. It was stony and sparse of vegetation along the ridge, the air from the distant sea a little cooler. But to the plodding man all sense of heat or cold or even weariness was gone. His mind held only one compulsion—raise one foot, put it forward, raise the other—keep going.

It was as if he had been going that since life began, as if nothing else existed in all the years behind him—that and the limp weight on his shoulder and the vulture circling in the sky. One foot, the other foot; rest if you get too dizzy, but keep going. You had to keep going. And always, at each turn in the trail he looked back—dreading but half-expecting to see those riders closing in.

Hours later he slid down the bank of a dry arroyo, and his heart leaped with sudden hope to see the steel beams of an oil derrick towering against the sky. The long night-mare was over! Here was help at last. At a clumsy shuffle he ran forward, shouting hoarsely until his voice came echoing back from among the rocks. Intently he listened. Only the wind among the upper girders.

Then he understood. The well had been abandoned—perhaps for years. The four-board was gone, the concrete blocks crumbling, and the skids where the engines once stood were rotting into the ground. Even the road was blotted out with vegetation.

No help there. Uneasily he moved away. That rusted, abandoned derrick had suddenly become invested with menace. It was a symbol of man's impotence. It told of defeat, of broken hopes, and of the vast indifference of the jungle.

Tears stung his eyes, and for a second he swayed, crying weakly; then, shifting the burden on his shoulder, he lowered his head and plodded on.

Endlessly the trail went winding upward through a narrow gorge. To the west, and far below, he could see the jungle stretching like a great green carpet, flecked with the shadows of clouds. Before him, indistinct in the haze, the South American shore line reached down to the Caribbean. He could see the ridge to the west that marked the Colombian border—he must be getting close to the top.

But his steps were shorter now. He stopped to rest oftener, leaning against the rough limestone wall of the gorge. Sweat blinded him; his tongue was stiff and thick, and he gulped down the green water in his thermos. He was too tired to get the map from out his knapsack. Besides, there was no other way—straight north to the sea.

The sea—and safety! "How goes it, Spud?" he asked. No answer. Just as well. He'd like to be unconscious too. Once his eyes rose to the rocky wall ahead. On the topmost crag the vulture sat, head to one side, and through a silent moment the two regarded each other.

"You're just what I need." The voice was weaker, but the man's eyes gleamed their old defiance, the cleft in the square chin deepened, and without knowing it he was climbing again, the head of his companion lolled from side to side behind him.

A breathless place. The trail had narrowed to a fissure between limestone cliffs that threatened to converge at every turn and block their advance. Fear, like a physical malady, tightened about his heart—if they had to turn back! Turn back and walk into the arms of that marauding band. He plodded on.

A sharp bend, a sudden upward swirl of wind, and 'Drew stopped with a gasp of disbelief. Just ahead the cliffs fell abruptly away, and before him stretched a gently sloping hillside that dipped down to a narrow stream-bed, then rose again to a grassy knoll where a low two-storied building stood. But he was looking neither at hillside nor building—that white-clad figure in the path held his incredulous eyes.

For an instant he fought the ghastly fear that reality had abandoned him. He closed his eyes, then opened them, but that figure in shimmering white persisted—the figure of a woman. He could see the thick dark hair clustered beneath the hood.

"That's bad," he mumbled. He gave a faltering laugh. "An angel! I would make it an angel!" He tried to stop his racking, senseless laughter, while through blurring eyes he saw the figure run toward him and heard her call, "Que pasa?"

He wondered at the Spanish words—crazily he told himself that angels should speak English.

Again the low voice, and this time she did speak English. "Here, let me help you." She spoke the least bit haltingly, and her intonation told of her Latin blood.

He answered gully, "It's not me—it's my partner."

With a strength her slender body had not foreshadowed, she helped lay the unconscious man on the ground. Her hands went to his pulse and eyes on her wrist watch, she waited.

"It's his head," the man explained.

At sight of the jagged gash she rose. "Wait here," she commanded. "Do not try to lift him." Turning, she ran down the path while, too utterly done to follow, he watched her cross the stream. She ran effortlessly, picking her way unerringly, like a wild thing, then, climbing the knoll, disappeared within the building.

Seized with a sudden thought, Drew knelt and began rummaging through his companions' pockets. Tobacco, coins, a short black pipe—he stuffed them back, looking doubtfully at his own knapsack and shrugged. "We'll take a chance."

He leaned his head on his arm; a great wave of nausea swept over him; then that passed, leaving him weak and dizzy.

Almost at once the girl came running toward him, followed by another white-clad figure—a youth of slender build, with a small black mustache and dark olive skin. Between them they raised the unconscious man and began making their way down the slope while the other followed, carrying his knapsack.

The girl turned and smiled. "He is in good hands now, your friend. Do not worry."

He nodded. He wasn't worrying. He was past all that. But it felt queer to be walking without that weight on his shoulder. He watched them climb the steps with Spud, and slowly followed.

A two-storied concrete building surrounded by a screened porch; the steps leading up to the door seemed endless, but the shadowy dimness was like a cooling bath to his sun-tired eyes. Corridors of soft green tile stretched to right

STOP-GAP METHODS PROVIDE TEACHERS

State Officials Act to Overcome War-Caused Instructor Shortage

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, Aug. 20.—A war-caused shortage of qualified teachers confronts Ohio as schools prepare to open, but the Buckeye state has taken emergency measures to assure youngsters of an education.

Harold J. Bowers, state supervisor of teacher certification, reported today the armed services and lucrative wartime jobs had reduced the ranks of fully certified teachers by about 4,000, approximately 10 per cent of Ohio's normal teacher strength.

"We are meeting the emergency," he explained, "by issuing temporary one-year certificates to persons whose qualifications do not quite meet requirements prescribed by the state."

"Mostly these include former teachers and others who have not yet completed their college courses. We will not entirely make up the loss of 4,000 fully qualified teachers, but the cooperation of those temporarily certified will see Ohio through the war emergency with a minimum deviation from education standards."

Acute shortages are found in courses involving industrial arts, physical education, agriculture, sciences and business education.

"There will be hundreds of schools unable to offer certain courses," Bowers said, "but in most schools faculty members will double up, taking over courses in which they are sufficiently versed to conduct classes."

NAZIS IN DENMARK COMBAT SABOTAGE

Danish Patriots Wreck
German Land, Sea Shipping Facilities

(By Associated Press)
STOCKHOLM, Aug. 20.—A determined, country-wide campaign of sabotage, apparently aimed at destroying land and sea transport facilities used by the Nazis to supply their forces in Norway was reported by travelers arriving here from Denmark today.

Danish patriots, the travelers said, are systematically wrecking Danish factories producing German war materials as well as railroads and harbor installations which have become increasingly important to the Germans since they no longer can ship men and supplies across Sweden to Norway.
At the same time representatives of the five major Danish political parties were called into extraordinary session in Copenhagen, apparently to consider changes in the government's policy toward Nazi occupation of Denmark.
Possibility of a switch in government leaders was seen as a result of the conclave.
Meanwhile disorders were reported mounting, travelers bringing word of clashes between patriots and German soldiers in Odense.

They said a railroad line transporting German war supplies for shipment to Norway had been dynamited at several places between Flensburg, Germany and Aarhus, Denmark.
Reports reaching Malmö said that 15 German soldiers were killed in riots which forced the authorities to clamp down an 8 p. m.
curfew on most of the Funen island district.
Pedestrian fatalities were 15 percent lower in 1942 than in the year previous.

WAC's Diary

I Learn When to Salute

By CORP. TRUDY WHITMAN
By the time they moved us over to our basic training quarters, we had got to know each other a little and like each other a lot. Our top sergeant had warned us: "Don't make deep friendships in the Army. You'll never be with the same group of people for any length of time, and each parting will be painful."

When our entire company was assembled for the first time and we stood in formation, separated from our friends by innumerable alphabetically itemized individuals, our morale took a nosedive.

Our new commanding officer greeted and welcomed us. Her words cut right through our despair. She concluded by saying:

"There will be moments when you will wonder what in the world you came in here for. Many things will confuse and discourage you. When you go to bed at night, forget your troubles. Tomorrow is another day. Everything you hoped to find in the WAC, is here. Your services are urgently needed. There is a job for you to do: we will train you to do it."

A party had been prepared for us. We were interested and curious. And dismayed when we learned that a party, army style, is just something else you take standing up. Our feet hurt; we didn't like our new quarters; we didn't like the new members of our company. We stood with our friends and jeered as some talented soprano reached for high C. We gripped, soldier style, and soon realized we'd never seen before. Suddenly we were having fun and joined in lustily to swell the chorus of the WAC songs the others were singing.

Shots were the next item on our agenda. Afterwards we all suffered from soreness of the arms, and after lights out, our barracks sounded like a Greek chorus—everybody moanin' low. We had all Sunday to recover, however, and by Monday morning we were able to face the calendar of events with good spirit and enthusiasm.

And what a calendar! We were staggered by its scope but not dismayed. We are all eager to learn everything all at once and there is so much to learn! About drill—well, there is little that dare be said—yet. We suppose the day will eventually come when we will cease to have two left feet and can execute a column right without knocking down the line behind us. Or is that a flank? We are studying an imposing list of army definitions.

One of the first things that disconcerts us is the salute—how and when. To our untrained civilian eyes, the salute looked simple and, whenever we saw it, perfect. But here we discover that our wrists bend, our fingers fly apart, our palms do a Hiawatha on us and our company officers say we look as though we were about to go into an Indian love call. We practice saluting each other, and criticisms, incredible as it seems, are welcomed.

When to salute is something else again. At the moment we are over-zealous. We just cannot believe it is ever correct to not salute an officer. Girls policing the area have been known to drop everything and let their scrap collections scatter to the four winds as they sight an officer and wheel into the rookie version of a snappy salute. Many of us are learning the hard way.

Civilians Hid Out In Messina Hills During Air Raids

By RELMAN MORIN

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 20.—Dispatches from Sicily said terrified civilians began emerging today from caves cut into the living rock of Messina's hills.

The Allied victory permitted them to return to the sunlight.

One cave measured 600 yards in length and 30 feet in width. It was found in tunneling the hillside nearly a year ago when the first raids hit Sicily.

Whole families made their homes through the past six months. Toward the end of the Sicilian campaign, they seldom left its dark recesses. They told stories of pain, disease and misery that surpassed any fictional horror-writing.

Allied bombers were in the skies day and night.

But the cruelty of the German troops and their callous disregard for all human considerations made the people pray for even heavier raids, they said, because it meant quicker deliverance.

30 Babies Are Born

During the time when the tunnel was packed tight with families, 30 babies were born there, an Italian doctor said.

He worked in the flickering light of kerosene lamps, often dimmed by the haze of rock and dust from bombs and shells hitting the entrance overhead. There was no disinfectant, very little material for bandaging and few surgical instruments.

The doctor told British air force officers that the Germans refused all professional assistance, confiscated all medical equipment and supplies, kept the single ambulance themselves and even prevented Italian hospital workers from lending their efforts to alleviate the suffering of the dirty, horror-crazed people in the cave.

People died in there—women in childbirth, new-born infants, men from shock, hunger and disease. The doctor was his own sanitary inspector. Sometimes he had to remove corpses himself. Others were too weak or too stunned to help.

Not all died from these causes. Some were shot by Germans.

The people said that even the battle-tough Nazi officers and soldiers began losing their nerve as the raids continued day and night. When the Allied field artillery began shelling the town, too, they fought like wild animals for places in the rocky shelters.

Entries For County Fair At Lisbon Being Listed

LISBON, Aug. 20.—Plans for the Columbiana county fair to be held Sept. 14 through 17 will be completed at a meeting of fair officials Monday evening, Sec'y J. Howard Sinclair announces.

Sinclair said that practically all concession space had been sold, and that live stock entries are being received. At least three county granges plan exhibits this year.

The race stables at the fair grounds are being improved, and the track is being graded. Buildings are being repainted and the main exposition hall is being renovated.

Music during the fair will be furnished by high school bands of the county, and the Fairmount Children's Home band.

Race officials, including starter, judges and timers, will be engaged within the next week, Gorge A. Rogers, in charge of the races, said.

Cassidy, Covering Red Army At Front, Enjoys Luxuries

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Aug. 20.—When you read stories under the headline, "WITH THE RED ARMY," don't feel sorry for the correspondents over any hardships you may imagine they are undergoing.

We take it in the neck—and various other parts of us—going to and from the front but, while there, we live in luxury.

Just a month ago I was sitting in a swank cocktail lounge on West 51st st., New York City. Now I have just been on a trip which reached a new high point in the Soviet organization of visits to the front. New York had nothing on the Russian front for comfort.

We stayed in a camp which could well serve as a rest resort for the tired American businessman. It rose as though by miracle on a bank of the Oka river opposite the ruins of Orel.

The roomy tents had four iron cots, each with snowy white sheets and khaki blankets. A table stood in the center covered with a tablecloth bearing a vase of flowers.

These super-special tents with double flaps at the door had sliding windows.

Service Deluxe

On the river bank was the bath tent providing hot showers.

A special mess tent had a head table for six persons and smaller tables for four set around the walls.

The service was provided by a squad of white-robed girls who heaped the tables twice daily with cold sausage, salmon, cheese, tomatoes, cucumbers, radishes, hot hamburger steak, potatoes, rice, vodka and hot milk.

There was also a "master barber" who entered the tent in the morning, said, "Si! vous plait," and offered a shave, and an accordionist who played Red army marching songs and selections from the opera Aida.

Price attendant of all was 27-year-old medical corps lieutenant Dora who acted as orderly, kept the tents neat in the day, tucked in the correspondents at night, and saluting briskly, left thief to slumber.

The trips to the front have even become co-educational. Four women correspondents were included this visit. One got a speck of dust in her eye and the caravan had to halt until it was removed, but otherwise they stood the test well.

There seemed to be one trouble about all this. We thought we were correspondents were going to the front. Our hosts thought we were a delegation which came from America to see how the Red army lives.

Typical Standing Up

Some got the misunderstanding erased by the trip home, however, when enough discomfort was provided to make it really seem like a trip to the front. Paradoxically, the discomfort was furnished by the United States in the form of three American machines, known as "bucket seat weapon carriers," which were used for transportation.

The bucket seats actually consisted of extremely hard, wooden boards on which we sat facing each other in the backs of trucks while the machines bucked and bounced over rough roads.

We sat that way for 18 hours, taking what could be compared only to an old-fashioned spanking.

The result was that when we got back to Moscow some of us had to put our typewriters on the top of the bookcase and write our dispatches standing up.

And we wished we could have brought the comforts of the camp back with us.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

characteristic in the Prussian military policy that German officers shall not lead their men into battle, excepting in case of necessity. That tough task is left to the non-commissioned officers. The reason given for this is that officers are difficult to replace, and so should direct operations from behind the lines where they won't get killed.

There are, of course, variations to this. German officers will fight quick enough and hard enough if it's necessary. When the non-coms are out of action, the officers jump in and do their bit. Indeed, some like Marshal Rommel lead their men into action from preference. But those cases are the exception. The Prussian is a wholly cold-blooded individual who places small value on the other fellow's life, but likes to avoid trouble himself.

Anyway, while the Prussian wouldn't stick by his capital the way a Briton or a Yankee or a Russian would, neither would he desert it unless it were in grave peril. If Hitler and his government are taking cover we may be sure that Germany's war crisis is indeed acute. This isn't to suggest that the Nazis are on the point of surrendering for there's bitter fighting ahead.

Solve Own Problems, Farmers Are Told By Bureau Official

(By Associated Press)
BATAVIA, Aug. 20.—Murray D. Lincoln, executive secretary of the Ohio Farm bureau, urged 5,000 southwestern Ohio farm people yesterday to dry and work out their own problems rather than expect the government to do it for them.

Lincoln told a farmers' victory rally at the Clermont county fair grounds in nearby Owensville, "when you ask the government to do something for you, you put the government in a position to do something to you."

"In the past," he said, "we have been too anxious to get a dose rather than solve our own problems. It's not wise to blame the government for the present farm situation. We ought to blame ourselves for not taking action ourselves 15 or 20 years ago."

He urged establishment of co-operatives as "tools to fashion our own destinies."

Predicting that labor unions would turn to co-operatives, he said, "then farmers can deal direct with urban working people and go around the monopolies in milk, packing, and so forth."

Lincoln, a delegate to the recent International Food conference, said the United States would provide technical leadership for other countries after the war.

"We won't put a quart of milk on every hottenot's doorstep," Lincoln said, "but we'll help him produce it for himself."

Draft of Fathers On or About Oct. 1 Appears Certain

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—War Manpower commission spokesmen today saw a "strong possibility" the only pre-Pearl Harbor fathers to face induction under the October draft quota of about 312,000 would be those in non-deferrable jobs.

They repeated, however, that there had been no change in plans to begin on Oct. 1 the induction of the pre-war father class—those whose children were born before last Sept. 15.

The officials said they had absolutely no confirmation of rumors that there would be any reduction in the previously announced goal of 10,800,000 men and women in the armed forces by the end of 1943.

Instead, they said, there were indications the total might mount even higher, in view of figures released this week by Navy Secretary Knox who estimated the Navy, Coast Guard and Marines would have 2,861,000 in uniform by Jan. 1, while the army has set its sights on 8,200,000.

Chairman Fulmer (D-SC) of the house agriculture committee, predicting a serious food shortage this winter, announced today he would seek a compulsory "furlough of farm labor out of the Army in the harvest season."

Declaring "tons and tons of food will not be harvested if we don't get labor to the farms," Fulmer said that "despite all the orders that have been publicized, they are still drafting farm labor, while thousands of bushels of vegetables are rotting on the ground."

Goebbels Promises New Anti-Aircraft Weapon

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Paul Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda chief, promised the German people today a new secret weapon may soon give them relief from Allied air raids.

"The new weapon against aerial war imposed upon us by the enemy is under construction," he wrote in his weekly article in the propaganda publication Das Reich. "Day and night innumerable busy hands are engaged in its completion."

65 Per Cent of Stores Aid OPA in Price Conformity

CLEVELAND, Aug. 20.—A survey of 16,849 retail stores in Ohio, West Virginia, Kentucky, Michigan and Indiana disclosed 65 per cent of these establishments were complying with price regulations, the OPA's regional price chief, Edward C. Welsh, announced today.

Price violators of varying degrees were discovered in the remaining 35 per cent but only an estimated eight per cent willfully disregarded regulations, Welsh reported.

Next time you get sore -- grab your pencil... FIGURE IT OUT YOURSELF

Next time you're sore at the Nazis or Japs, just sit down for a minute. And if there's a pencil handy, do a little figuring—something like this...

Sure, taxes are higher. You're paying more than you used to. And the cost of living hasn't gone down any either. That's costing you more. But...

Chances are, you're making more, too. And maybe somebody else in the family's working. Maybe one of the girls is bringing home a pay envelope every week—and pretty good pay at that. Chances are, there's more cash coming into your home right now than there has been for a long, long time. What's more...

Maybe you were going to get a new bus this year. Every year, you know, millions of people did get new ones. Or radios. Or refrigerators. Anyw-y, it's a cinch you'd have spent some money this year on things you can't buy now.

So what? So maybe you can put more of your family earnings into War Bonds! Not 10% or 12% or 15% or 20%—but all you can! If you and every other American who has an income will sharpen up your pencils and figure out how you can save an extra dollar here and another there that can go into War Bonds—if you'll keep on figuring and saving—you'll provide a weight of metal that will snap the Axis' spine like a rotten stick!

Let's pour it on! And keep pouring it on till the murderous fools who have defiled our soil, butchered our sons, broken up our homes—who have refused to let us live and work in peace—are smashed utterly to dust! Get out that pencil and use the charts below!

Here's what comes in . . . Here's what goes out

Write down name of each one in family who works, and what he or she earns per month.

Ritchie Wins Shut Out Victory Over Strains In Park Tilt

BLISS SCORES 2-0 WIN WHILE SCOTTS BOW TO FURNACES

Paxsons Defeat Twin Beauty Club In Class B; Sheen's Win Forfeit

Dale Ritchie was credited with another shut-out victory when the Bliss beat Strains, 2 to 0, last evening at Centennial park.

In the other Class A league tussle, the Electric Furnace defeated Scotts, 7 to 4.

Only one Class B game was played, Paxsons grubbing the Twin Beauty nine 9 to 2. The Friends forfeited to Sheens in the other scheduled encounter.

The Bliss teammates accounted for six hits in their game with Strains, scoring one run in the first inning and another in the third. The Furnaces were ahead by only one run at the end of the third inning of their fracas, but two additional runs in the fifth and sixth innings provided a safe winning margin. Summaries:

V-Squad Equaling Nurses Aides Job
PHILADELPHIA—The tired business man who directs hundreds of workers during the day now spends his after-office hours running elevators, cleaning floors and making beds.
 The "V" squad at Jewish hospital, comprised of 42 business and professional men, accepts any job that has to be done at the institution—regardless of how menial, and without waiting to be told.
 Attired in his white uniform with a "V" sewn on the sleeve, each man does a specific job for six weeks, then is shifted to another task. Before they took up the work, the volunteers received a 10-week training course from doctors, nurses, dietitians and the administration staff.
 The men enthusiastically responded to an appeal by Charles Kahn, a hospital trustee, who is himself a volunteer worker. In fact, so many offered their services in the plan to relieve the shortage of non-medical assistants that there is now a waiting list of 103 men.
 Hospitals throughout the country, including Johns Hopkins at Baltimore have requested Kahn to give them information concerning the program. Some hospitals have already put the plan into effect.

Many Young Ohioans To Walk To School Due To ODT Rule

COLUMBUS, Aug. 19.—Unless the Office of Defense Transportation reconsiders action denying or reducing gasoline allowances for a score of Ohio school buses, hundreds of Buckeye youngsters will be without transportation this fall. Delbert Woodford, assistant state education director, reported today.

"Approximately 20 buses in as many school districts have been denied gasoline or had their allowances curtailed for the last half of the 1943 calendar year," Woodford said.

In issuing certificates of war necessity, the regional ODT office at Chicago decreed that "five or six" buses should have no gasoline between July 1 and Dec. 31 because the transportation is unessential, he added. Fuel allotments for the others have been curtailed so sharply, he said, that pick-up schedules must be revised.

Woodford said ODT in June questioned school bus schedules in more than 100 districts of 35 Ohio counties, contending they failed to comply with an order to discontinue transportation for children residing within two miles of a school or a mile and a half from a trunk school bus route.

School officials in the districts submitted explanations to show conformity with ODT's policies. Joseph B. Eastman, ODT director, said in a statement of policy that local school boards should determine whether it would work a "serious physical hardship" upon a child or expose him to "extreme danger" if he were required to walk to school. If these results were likely the two-mile residence restriction could be disregarded. Although ODT granted certificates in approving bus schedules in 40 of the 100 districts, 40 others still are awaiting theirs. On a county basis, Woodford said, bus certificates have been forwarded to not more than a third of Ohio's 88 counties.

Since ODT ordered school bus schedules curtailed last November to save gasoline and rubber, Ohio school districts have reduced bus operations by about 750,000 miles per school year, Woodford said. With this cut, 6,793 school buses in the state travel approximately 40,199,000 miles annually in transporting about 286,000 children daily. The education official mentioned that three Highland county buses, one in Ashland county and another in the village of Crooksville (Perry county) were denied gasoline. He recalled counties in which bus schedules were challenged include Cuyahoga, Franklin, Lucas, Stark, Jefferson and Hocking.

Eisenhower Grotes For Words To Laud Sicilian Conquerors

(By Associated Press)
ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Aug. 20.—Even Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was reaching for words—words strong enough to carry what he wanted to say about the men who conquered Sicily.

Usually the commander-in-chief speaks rapidly with vigorous, picturesque phraseology. Ordinarily he has an answer ready before a question is fully asked.

But at a press conference today he groped around for a good five minutes trying to express his satisfaction over the performance of American and British troops when they came up against crack German divisions.

Eisenhower's dancing blue eyes and the look on his face expressed it better than any words—but he couldn't know that.

Finally he broke into a stream of mild but emphatic expletives and said: "They did everything the finest armies in the world could have done."

Eisenhower said the correspondents could quote that—minus the original cuss words.

The general said American troops had developed to a point where they are worthy partners of the British Eighth army—and described their combined operations as "a double-barreled shotgun."
